

Maria Rólkowska, The cultural and culinary fusion, or bi-national families as an example of intercultural communication in the light of Polish Press.

Summary

Although there are more and more bi-national families in Poland, this subject is hardly present in Polish press and in a very superficial way. The authoress focuses on Polish-Italian families which are shown in press by culinary topics (specially Tessa Capponi-Borowska – Italian who has lived in Poland for more than 20 years). Fortunately, at the background of the articles it is possible to find an information about intercultural communication in these kind of families: ways of strategies of acculturation and ways of bringing up children. The authoress also hopes that this topic will be more and more popular in Polish media because bi-national families are becoming elements of the new intercultural reality of XXI century.
